What do we retain about our humanity through cultural shifts that leave us accelerated far beyond what our ancestors dreamed of?

Spiritual Machines, an art exhibition at Flux Factory on Governors Island, opens Saturday August 17, from noon-5pm. The exhibition presents interdisciplinary works by leading contemporary artists encompassing new media, video, sculpture, installation, and performance.

The works respond to our current condition of technological advancement, addressing artificial intelligence, hybrid humans, what is real in an increasingly virtual world, and what cultural practices, rituals, and artifacts we are retaining, revisiting, and evolving along with us.

Additionally, there will be performance programs on August 17 and on September 21.

Exhibiting artists include: Nimrod Astarhan, LadyK, Dennis Delgado, Chun Hua Catherine Dong, [M] Dudeck, Gabe Duggan, Sherese Francis, In Her Interior, TwinArt, Sophie Kahn, Sylvia Ke, Adelle Lin Yingxi, Mama Spa Botanica workshop, Andres Senra, Linda Sok, Carlos David Trujillo, Lee Tusman, and Ricardo Miranda Zúñiga. With performances by MIDHEAVEN OR NAH, Ursula Endlicher, malu laet, Adelle Lin Yingxi, Avital Meshi, Glenn Potter-Takata, and more!

The exhibition is curated by artists Amelia Marzec and Jodie Lyn-Kee-Chow, with curatorial writing by Julia Stachura. It is supported by Flux Factory's Governors Island Residency.

Flux Factory's mission is to support emerging artists through Artist-in-Residencies and Exhibitions, education and collaborative opportunities.
